Insurance Claim Adjusters and Insurance Appraisers Examination after Expiration of Licenses

Effective immediately, Insurance Claim Adjuster licensees and Insurance Appraiser licensees (collectively "Licensees") who allow their licenses to expire have until one (1) year from the date of expiration to file a new application for a license and not have to retake the appropriate examination for licensing. Licensees must still complete and file a new application and file the appropriate reissuance affidavit.

If a Licensees' license has expired for more than one (1) year from the date of expiration, the Licensee must also take the appropriate examination in order to apply for a new license.
